THE SELKIEMAID

The word selkie means "seal" in the Scottish tradition and with those little grey heads bobbing above the waves watching us with uncannily human eyes, we have come to know them as 'selkies'. When they change from seals into humans and dance on the seashores casting off their creature skins to do uncannily human things we understand even more about their natures. Today our story is about a selkie's date with the land and a special child named Aiden whom she met on that date.

Suitable for GRADES 1 - 5

BABAR

from the stories by Jean de Brunhoff

Babar is the famous King of the elephants. His little family, Pom, Flora and Alexander gather round him urging to tell them all about his past adventures. We follow him from his childhood all the way up to when he becomes an adult, as he learns about life, his role as a King and as a father. Oh what difficult tasks! Babar's engaging and amusing adventures present a whole range of highly colorful story lines, that children understand and that help them as they grow.

Suitable for Preschool - Grade 3

AVAILABLE IN FRENCH AND ENGLISH

At Schools February 1 - April 15 2012

ARABIAN TALES/Les contes d' arabies

Silly and outlandish stories full of good intentions, The Princess and the Mouse and How the Caliph Became a Stork are funny adventures that share many of the same qualities of magic and wildness as the Arabian Nights. This is a great opportunity to expose your students to other kinds of storytelling, a different culture and ways of seeing the world through new eyes. A caliph wants to fly and a princess is afraid to speak but a fast talking mouse and a forest nymph help them to solve the problems of the day.

Suitable for Grades K - 4
